AccellosOne Platform

Composite Application Framework

Assembling Your Applications

Over the last several years a very quiet revolution has taken place in the consumer electronics world. For the most part, consumers are no longer willing to buy an electronic device that has a single function. Smartphones can have “apps” downloaded to personalize them to the needs of their owners. TVs have internet applications built in to allow for streaming media and game site access. Automobiles have technology embedded that allows for constant contact to be maintained with the outside world as well as organizing the owner’s listening and phoning preferences. We’ve gravitated towards a “have it your way” world.

With that shift in mind, we’ve constructed AccellosOne Platform to deliver a similar experience to the business software user. Platform provides an unrivaled level of flexibility in designing a user experience focused on:

- Driving productivity through better organization
- Improving consistency and thus simplifying the learning curve for new users
- Assembling a broad array of applications needed to meet your requirements

Platform uses the latest in Microsoft technology to deliver a rich user experience in a browser based solution. And, provides a deep set of services like Localization, Authentication and Printing that forms a solid foundation for growth.

Isn’t it time to choose a business application framework that is as productive as your smartphone?

Enterprise Scalability

The AccellosOne Platform has been built using a modern n-tier architecture that allows for extensive growth, both through the use of a more extensive hardware infrastructure as well as virtualization. It leverages many of your existing investments in technology, like Active Directory, Lync, SQL Server and both Windows Server and Internet Information Server.

Rich, Interactive User Experience

Many products talk about a web-centric user interface. The AccellosOne Platform talks about a “rich internet application”. Delivering functionality over the web is yesterday’s news – delivering desktop caliber usability and productivity through the use of Web 2.0 tools is where the bar is being held today. The AccellosOne Platform has been built to do just that – if you're familiar with Microsoft Office you'll find the AccellosOne Platform experience to be very intuitive, productive and simple to learn.

Did Someone Say Collaboration?

Social networking and instant connectivity define the world that we live in. The AccellosOne Platform incorporates that world into its basic business paradigm. Leveraging Microsoft's Lync unified communication server, the AccellosOne Platform can instantly determine a user's availability giving the user the ability to collaborate through email, instant messaging, voip calling or electronic meeting. Oh, and it also integrates with Twitter and RSS to push and pull the latest information you need to drive business success.

Build Your System Your Way

The AccellosOne Platform allows you to "assemble" the desktop to include Accellos built "apps", available internet content and any other "app" built by you or a 3rd party using the AccellosOne Platform tools. You can construct role-based "templates" that drive common functionality to users within your organization – breeding consistency, but not sacrificing each users individual needs.
